

Welcome to Preparing for Emergencies by Building an Emergency Action Plan brought to you by the Technical Assistance Program at Pacific Gas & Electric.

PG&E is passionate about safety, and even more committed to ensuring diverse suppliers are proven and prepared to serve in the corporate supply chain.

My name is Pamela Isom, President and CEO of In Case of Emergency. And for the past 21 years, we've had the distinct honor to support corporations across the US with their emergency response planning, training, and equipment.

As you're all aware, an emergency or natural disaster can impact your business, your customers, and their customers.

This course will ensure your company does not pose a risk to PG&E's supply chain, or any corporation's supply chain. By having an emergency action plan, you will have the competitive advantage, tools, and action steps in case of emergency.
